CULTIVATING ORCHARDS .- At a recent meeting of the Lancaster County Agricultural and Harticultural Society Mr. Henry M. Engle, to whom was ref. rred the question of the caltivation of crehards, said the question was yet a mooted one; successful fruit growers held different views on the subject. His own observa tion was that the most successful growers cul-Jersey and Delaware reach growers all plow their orehards annually. Prof. Mechan op-poses plowing, but manures liberally, and keeps his orchard in grass. Mr. Satterhwait, the great pear grower, shows fine fruit, but does not cultivate; Mr. Martin plows his dawrf pear orchards and groes the finest pears the speaker had ever seen. Here we have good authority on both sides. Mr. Engle believed that for the first few years the orchard should certainly be cultivated, but he is not spre it should be cu tivated after the trees are well growt; the catting away of large roots will no doubt in ince the trees. He believed in liberal manuring. whether the crehards were plowed or no'.

FALL PLOWING FOR CORN.-- Heavy clay s. ils that have a good covering of clover or grass sid may be plowed in September for a crop of corn next season. We would not plow the forrows flat, but set them on edge. In the spring a good harrowing, lengthwise the farrows, will give a sufficient depth of mellow soil for planting, leaving the decomposed sod just where the roots can retch it. A light application of artificial manure before the harrowing in the spring would be beneficial. The planting should immediately follow the harrow, while the soil is fresh. Light or mucky lands had better be left till spring, as this treatment is not proper for them.
